

American Hornbeam (Carpinus Caroliniana)

Various stages of the spring budding process. The hornbeam is monoecious with the staminate (catkin) flowers and the pistillate flowers appearing on the same tree. After pollination, the catkins fall off, the pollinated pistillate flowers extend forming a cascade of seed pods.

